On the occasion of Quit India Movement Day Dept of History, IQAC & Alumni Association of Jorhat Kendriya Mahavidyalaya organized a popular talk through video conferencing using Microsoft Team Platform. The topic was “Gandhi Studies in Contemporary Period” and speaker was Dr. Chandan Sarmah Head, Dept of History, Dibrugarh University. The programme was hosted by Minakshi Borah Associate professor HoD dept of History. On that day faculty members of the department felicitated Khageswar Gogoi who is a renowned freedom fighter of Assam. The welcome address was delivered by Dr. Dulen Saikia, Principal, Jorhat Kendriya Mahavidyalaya. He extended a warm welcome to the speaker Dr. Chandan Sarmah and all the participant. Following by the inaugural address Dr. Chandan Sarmah presented his speech. Dr. Sarmah elaborately discussed about Gandhi’s teachings which transcend all generations and are relevant even to the modern time. Gandhi’s preaching and message are inspired by so many people across the world that is why UNO has declared Gandhi’s birth day on 2nd October as a International day of Non-violence. Dr. Sarmah very aptly analysed Gandhi’s simplicity, kindness, truth and non violence. According to him the only solution to injustice and extremism today is to revisit and practice Gandhi’s value such as truth, non-violence and secularism. In the Interactive Session, the clarification and queries of the participants regarding various aspects were explained by the speaker. Then our alumni Bhrigumoni Nath conducted the Question answer session. The programme was ended with the concluding remarks delivered by Nibedita Baruah, Associate Professor of History Department and Vote Of thanks was delivered by Karabi Baruah Asstt. Prof. Department of History.
